

THE SINGAPORE LEGAL SERVICE

We invite you to consider a career as a LEGAL SERVICE OFFICER and appointment as a LAW DRAFTER at the ATTORNEY-GENERAL'S CHAMBERS

The Legislation Division of the Attorney-General's Chambers is the national law drafting office of Singapore. Our law drafters turn public policy into clear and effective legislation.

We are looking for lawyers who have a keen interest in shaping the law, an interest in policy formulation, an ability to think critically and creatively, strong legal and analytical skills and good communication skills.

As a law drafter, you will deal with a wide range of laws and policies, including constitutional law, criminal law, technology, media and telecommunications law, family law, securities regulation, corporate law, tax law, and emerging areas of regulation such as coastal protection and space law.

You will be working in a dynamic environment at the heart of Government, alongside policy-makers of all levels in Ministries and statutory boards, and will be expected to offer creative legal solutions to give effect to policies. You will play an integral role in nation-building and upholding the rule of law.

You will be given training in legislative drafting, including courses overseas. As a Legal Service Officer, you will also have competitive career development opportunities within the Singapore Legal Service framework.

Law drafting is a craft that is intellectually challenging, fascinating and professionally satisfying. You will be among Singapore's most influential writers and your writing will leave a legacy. If the prospect of shaping Singapore's Statute Book inspires you, then join the law drafters of Singapore.
